Mr. HURLEY (Hartley) thought the matter was not a fair one. The Brothers had been used too often in the past, and he thought the Government would not support any Government which would play favouritism in the public service.

Mr. GARRETT thought the business of the agency stood upon about the same footing as the business of the public service, agency, except that the former had not been subjected to the same criticism as the latter, which was not the case with the agency. It appeared to him that the Mr. Greville was undeserved, as Mr. Greville was a man of high character.

call for his constituents all that Mr. Graham has considered if he should press to accept his tender. Suspicion would be the steps of a member of Parliament to make such a statement in the columns of the Press to encourage insinuations of dishonesty of such gentlemen from the political institutions into contempt, an acquiescence with which such charges would be in the least consistent. Mr. Graham did not justify improper promotion of Mr. Cohen to the office of Secretary of the Government, and thought it did not disgrace Mr. Cohen to make the same, as the hon. member had himself intimated that he would do so for instance, in the House of Commons, in the words of the Hon. Mr. DILLON.

After remarks from Mr. O'CONNOR PATRICK.

Mr. WATSON denied that there was preparation for the promotion of Mr. Edmond, and that he had not been asked to decline it, and he then gave it to Mr. as far as he knew at the time, was that and had been highly recommended.

Mr. LUCAS respected Hudson, Brodhead and the others, but he did not think it was not be a matter for surprise that the House had so often been mentioned in the Herald. It appeared that it had obtained many of its competitors. Goodlet and Smith and others quite as well able to execute similar orders as their names were not mentioned because they had the chance of contracts excepted from competition. If no contracts were to be given, competition such discussions would not be. He was of opinion that there was no acceptance of tenders without the knowledge of the House. He did not know nothing about the case of Mr. Hudson, but he maintained that it was at all times a matter for surprise that the House should have been mentioned in the Herald.

Mr. Buss believed from his observation that there was less reason for suspecting that the work was done in dealing with tenders for contracts of the public service than was supposed to be the case with members. Tenders were usually made in the presence and under the direction of the board, and a schedule of the names of the successful tenderers was published.

are discovering another opportunity for Ireland for the Irish, and that there is a movement on foot to send out steamers from New York with arms to assist in a general rising.

The moving spirit in the project is Mr. PARNELL, and so far as he is concerned the agitation is easily explained. The avowed object of Mr. PARNELL is to break the power of Mr. STURTEVANT, and his contact with him, is not only to break the land from the fetters of English rule, but to needs be, to accomplish this.

These have been the tactics of the Parliamentary party in the House of Commons. The threat of this party is that there shall be no peace in Ireland, and that justice is done to Ireland, and that the Government have been carried out by a resort to a form of obstruction. These tactics have fortunately proved too successful for the Government. Mr. Bannell and of agrarian rights are widely different in the two countries. In Ireland the feudal notion of collective proprietorship still lingers, while in England it has for the most part died out. In the latter country the first person to be considered is the landlord. In Ireland, according to the opinions which prevail among the peasantry, it is the farmer. The creed of no small portion of those who cultivate the soil of Ireland is that those who make the soil productive have the first claim upon it. Both countries suffer from the undue preponderance of large estates, and both from the difficulty of transfer; but while the difficulties in England are legal those in Ireland are more strictly social. In a large number of instances the English landlord has only a life interest in his estate, and for that reason he could not part with the estate itself if he would. The Irish landlord cannot sell because there is nobody to buy anything like what he deems equitable terms. The Irish farmer has no fixity of tenure, and as a consequence, he can be evicted at the will or at the caprice of the landlord.

Add to this the fact that the present condition of the agricultural population of Ireland is largely the result of the Irish conquests that followed English conquests, and that owing to the penal laws of the last century no Roman Catholic could hold land in fee, and it will not appear surprising that in Ireland more than in most other countries the land question has been a source of deep rooted and of long standing discontent. In Ireland a large portion of the soil is in a limited number of hands, the result being that while the few are enriched the many are impoverished. As compared with the English the Irish have few industries, and for that reason the bulk of the people must become farmers or emigrants. Thus the farmers are too numerous for the land to be cultivated, and the mouths to be fed. It is said that the average holdings in Ireland do not consist of more than thirty-two acres; and three-quarters of the tenants, of whom there are 600,000 altogether, hold less than thirty acres. Although the tenants number 600,000, the landlords do not number more than 16,000. It has been stated that two-thirds of the whole of less than 2000 persons. The hardships of the Irish peasant have not been denied or overlooked by English statesmen. A good many schemes have been propounded for improving the condition of the farmers of Ireland. Many attempts have been made in the English Legislature with a view of removing this chief of Irish difficulties. According to some the remedy for the agrarian evils of Ireland lies in giving the peasant such a fixity of tenure as will secure him the right to the soil as long as he is pleased to cultivate it and to pay his rent. Others would have the Legislature step in and furnish a scheme for buying the landlords out and for creating a peasant proprietary. Both the Irish Church and Land Acts of the Gladstone Government sought to improve the condition of the Irish peasants, the first by directing that in disposing of ecclesiastical landed property the preference of purchase, as well as substantial assistance, should be given to the occupying tenants, and the second by giving inducements to landlords to dispose of their lands to tenants, and by directing the Land Commission to give facilities to tenants who might wish to purchase their holdings. The first object of the Act, namely, the one which dealt with the tenant and the landlord as proved a failure, the consequence being that the condition of the Irish peasantry is much what it was before the Act was passed.

A few months ago the House of Commons decided that it is desirable to make a considerable addition to the numbers of owners of land in Ireland, and that this should be done by amending the Bazaar clauses of the Irish Land Act of 1870, and by turning to tenants such opportunities for purchase as will be consistent with the interest of owners. Up to the present, however, nothing has been done, and what Parliament has failed to do by reasonable means Mr. PARNELL and his coadjutors now insist on doing by force. Farmers are urged not to pay their rent, and landlords who demand payment are threatened with assassination. "You must show the landlords," says Mr. PARNELL, "that you intend to hold a firm grip on your homesteads and land; you must not allow yourselves to be dispossessed as you were in 1847; you must not allow your small holdings to be turned into large ones. I am supposing that the landlords will maintain due to the voice of reason, but I hope they may not, and that on those properties on which the rents are out of all proportion to the times a reduction may be made, and that immediately. If not, you must help yourselves, and the public opinion of the world will stand by you and support you in the struggle to defend your homesteads." That is to say, the Irish peasantry are to secure by foul means what they cannot secure by fair ones. Having tried coercion with so much success in England, the Home Rulers are attempting it on a larger scale in Ireland.

It is understood that there are in the colony at the present moment seven hundred persons who are blind, and that of these four hundred are in Sydney. All are, of course, more or less dependent upon the consideration and aid of others for such comfort and enjoyment as can be had in life when the sense that puts men in relation with the beauties of the outer world is wanting. But many are dependent on others for the very means of subsistence, and are helplessly upon charity for support. Where blindness is incurable, the deprivation of the peculiar advantages that sight implies cannot be made good by the most earnest efforts of the benevolent. But there is a possibility of mitigating the pressure of that dependence which utter helplessness brings by instructing the blind in light forms of industry that can be carried on by the sense of touch, and putting them in a position in which they can earn for themselves at least a portion of their bread. The spectacle of blind beggars by the wayside is neither a pleasant one, nor beneficial in its influence, and it may well be imagined that there are many indigent blind who have not yet appealed to the public in this way, who suffer from the feeling that they are a burden upon their friends, and wearily pass their hours of compulsory idleness in wishing that they could turn their time and the faculties they do possess to account. A movement was started some time ago to better the condition of the one class, and to meet the desires of the other, by providing for the blind "efficient instruction in work, convenient rooms for working in, materials with which to work, and a place in which the work may be displayed and disposed of advantageously to the workers." The idea is not new one, for it has been tested by experience in England, with success. It is deserving of encouragement and support, because it points out a way in which the exercise of charity tends not to pauperize the recipient, but to lift him out of the slough of hopeless inevitable pauperism. The movement in question has hitherto been conducted under provisional arrangements. The late Mr. J. W. Wood, of the Globe, left a sum of money which, with other donations, and aid from the State, has provided a building for the purpose—the structure erected at the junction of William-street with the Boomerang Road. But funds are required to enter upon the work, and the time has come for formally inaugurating an association, adopting rules for its management, and appointing a committee or board of directors for the first year. A public meeting is to be held for these purposes on Monday afternoon next, at the Masonic Hall; and it is to be hoped that the public will give the movement liberal encouragement by attending and contributing to the funds. It should be understood that the institution will be distinct from, though not in any way antagonistic to the institution for the Deaf and Dumb and Blind. The latter is for the reception and instruction of children, who reside within the building. The new institution is for the benefit of adults, who for the most part will be instructed as work within the building, but return in the evening, with their earnings, each to his respective home. It will be readier perceived that for the sake of the young children, who are being taught and trained for life, it is inexpedient that the adults should be received on the same premises; and as the special objects which are sought in the one case differ much from those pursued in the other, both could hardly be accomplished advantageously under one management. There is a good work for the new institution to do; and those who really pity the sorrows of the poor blind, will hardly need much persuasion to assist in its performance.

We presume that the Government will thoroughly satisfy itself as to the workmanship of the bridge over the Parramatta River, as the matter is not merely one of economy but possibly of human life. It is very costly to build bridges that are not strong enough for their work, and still more costly to have accidents. This bridge is in one respect peculiar, inasmuch as it was originally designed for a road bridge, and has been subsequently modified rather than redesigned to serve also as a railway bridge. The strain of railroad traffic is greater than that of ordinary road traffic, but it is possible that this bridge may have to sustain a trial more severe than that of a railroad. It so happens that this structure spans the Parramatta River at a point which commands the end of the racing course. Great crowds go to witness these boat races, and the bridge will be a favourite standing place. There is nothing that tries the nerves more than to see a crowd on one side, and still more so if the mass of people should rush tumultuously from one side to the other. A suspension bridge on the Thames once gave away under such a strain. We are aware of whether this possible strain has been considered by the engineers; but in any case the fact that at race time the bridge may be densely packed with human beings, makes it imperative that the utmost care should be exercised in putting the structure together. The Government is in the best possible position to see that this is not the case in the hands of any contractor. All the tenders being considered too high, the work is being carried out by the department, and the officials therefore have complete control over both design and workmanship, and are free to adopt any course that may seem best.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

MR. GLADSTONE in his candidature for the Midlothian address the electors at Edinburgh on Tuesday. He not only denounces the Beaconsfield Government, but also the majority of the House of Commons as being responsible for the home and foreign policy of the ministry, and he would have them both supplanted by others more of his own way of thinking. His declaration in favour of a local autonomous government for Ireland have been certain to serve him well in his candidature for a seat in Parliament. Had he been seeking to represent an Irish constituency, his cable messages of this morning also contain several items relating to the unhappy state of affairs in Ireland. With regard to foreign affairs, Russia, we are told, is about to initiate extensive internal reforms; and there is, it is said, a growing belief in London in the intention of Russia to adopt a pacific policy in the future, both in regard to Europe and Asia, and the reforms promised by Prince Gortschakoff tend to strengthen this belief.

GREATER part of yesterday's sittings of the Legislative Assembly were taken up by a discussion on the adjournment, moved by Mr. McElhone, to draw attention to alleged mal-practices in connection with the system of tendering for public works. A MEETING of the Exhibition Commissioners was held at the office, Macquarie-street, yesterday afternoon, Sir John Hay presided. The usual weekly reports of the officers connected with the various departments of the Exhibition were read. That from the superintendent of admissions stated that the admissions for the week ending November 27 inclusive, were as follows:—Season tickets, 2680; general public, 20,008; children, 3828, and exhibitors and students, 5110, bringing the total admissions since the opening of the Exhibition up to 872,084 persons. The finance committee reported that up to the end of November 28, the following amounts had been received and paid into the Treasury since the Exhibition opened—on ticket account, £17,896 4s. 6d.; on concession accounts, ground rent, and other, £1359 4s. 3d.; total £19,245 8s. 9d. The committee reported that the entries for the wool show were numerous, and that the wool was of a superior quality. The committee also presented its report, recommending the names of certain gentlemen as judges, and certain arrangements for the show and sales of stock. Reports from the committees on education and science, and judging and awards, were also presented and adopted. This latter report contained the plan of distribution and allotment of judges to each of the participating countries.

We learn that Dr. Barwick, yesterday, gave his consent to come forward as a candidate for the vacant seat for East Sydney. The steamship Strathleven (Captain Pearson), whose arrival and stay in the harbour attracted so much attention, cleared out yesterday. She arrived here with a full complement of immigrant passengers on the 27th of October, and was detained also days before the immigrants had all cleared. The cargo was unusually heavy, and as little time as possible lost in discharging it, and then in receiving the new cargo. This consists of 3000 bales of wool, 180 tons of tallow, 80 tons of pearl shell, 150 cases of meat, 275 tons of copper and tin, about 30 tons of fresh beef and mutton, and about 30 tons of small bags of butter, all these last kept in the refrigerator. There are also on board a few passengers for Melbourne. The vessel calls at Melbourne, where her cargo will be augmented by 3000 bales of wool. She will leave that city on the 6th of December, and should arrive in London in ample time for the February wool sales.

The Full Court, yesterday morning (their Honors Mr. Justice Fawcett, Sir William Manning, and Mr. Justice Windeyer being on the bench) sustained the conviction in the Crown case of the Queen v. Ryan and the Queen v. Buller, and disposed of a number of general matters.

MR. HON. THOMAS KING, Minister of Education in South Australia, arrived in Sydney yesterday morning, having come overland from Melbourne. A number of other members of the South Australian Parliament are said to be en route for the Exhibition.

ESOLIAN papers announce the death of Admiral the Hon. Keith Stewart, C.B. The admiral married the only daughter of Sir Charles Fitzroy, K.C.B., and it will be remembered, resided in this city during a part of the time of Sir Charles Fitzroy's governorship of the colony.

A COMMUNICATION from Government House was received yesterday by the Secretary, intimating that His Excellency the Governor had much pleasure in becoming the patron of the Sacred Choral Society. The oratorio of "Elijah" will be given by the society, at the Garden Palace, on the 6th proximo.

His Honor the Chief Justice has been pleased to appoint Mr. Henry Edwards, second clerk in the Law Department of the Supreme Court, to be a commissioner for taking affidavits in the colony of New South Wales.

BRICKER and WOLFE sold yesterday, at West Maitland, 3 imported heavy draught mares, the property of J. Swan, of Victoria; the whole realising £2300. They are a grand lot, and all are purchased by the Hunter River breeders. P. Ford, Buchanan, Chas. Tucker, of Belmore; Robert Eckford, of East Maitland; and J. Pearce, of Greenfield, were the buyers.

With regard to the forthcoming intercolonial cricket match, we have been requested to state that the selection committee inadvertently omitted Chittell's name from the practice team.

At a committee meeting, of the New South Wales Sporting Club, held on Thursday, Mr. W. R. Hall in the chair, Mr. R. McCulloch, of Cumnock, was appointed judge, and Mr. R. G. Bannister, slipper for the Rattray meeting, to be held in May next. Mr. MADDOCK has arranged a special excursion trip, via the Hawkesbury River for Tuesday next, the 2nd of December. Visitors intending to participate in this delightful tour may proceed either overland or by means of the steamer Paloma to Pitt Water, and thence by a launch to the river mouth, where a launch will be waiting to receive them. The fare is very reasonable, and all necessary information can be obtained from Mr. Maddock in George-street. The scenery of the Hawkesbury River is extremely beautiful, but it is a district not easily accessible to business people whose avocations permit of only a flying visit, and ordinary travellers cannot do more than glance at the river as they pass. The excursion is arranged particularly with a view to finding them out. As a special recommendation to intending visitors, it may be as well to remind them that Anthony Trollope describes the Hawkesbury as more beautiful than the Mississippi, and that river as superior to the Rhine.

YESTERDAY afternoon, Professor Pepper delivered the fourth of his lectures on light, at the Victoria Theatre. He dealt, on this occasion, with the "Prism and Solar Spectrum," and gave a most interesting and popular entertainment. By means of some curious yet simple experiments he gave a very clear illustration of the refraction of light by solid, fluid, and gaseous media, and explained the law of refraction. The experiments of Professor Pepper, which were conducted with the aid of a very powerful apparatus, showing the alteration of the refractive index of various media, and the invisible rays beyond the violet, were very striking and beautiful, as were also the phenomena of internal dispersion of fluorescence. The entertainment concluded with the oxyhydrogen microscope, by means of which the wondrous beauty of the most minute structures were plainly visible. The use of the smallest and most skillful pieces of glass work appeared rude and unimproved by comparison. These illustrations were watched with much interest by the audience, who testified their approval by frequent applause. At the close Professor Pepper announced that the two remaining lectures of the course would be delivered on next Tuesday and Friday evenings, at the same time, and that those who had purchased tickets for the course would be admitted to them instead. This afternoon the Professor is to re-deliver his lecture on the "Electric Light," which he gave on Tuesday afternoon last, and as the lecture is of great interest, there will, no doubt, be a great attendance.

With a view of testing the capabilities of the several novelties exhibited at the International Exhibition, a trial was made on the Randwick Racecourse, yesterday afternoon. The competition was one of an entirely ex-officio character, so to speak, and resolved itself into a kind of friendly meeting of the representatives of the various machines who offered their services to Mr. Clibborn to mow the grand-stand lawn for him. Messrs. Lessor and Co., of Sydney, and Messrs. Lessor and Co., of London, were the principal competitors. The trial was a most successful one, the machines, kindly placed a trial at the disposal of the visitors, and a very pleasant afternoon was spent in the enjoyment of Mr. Clibborn's hospitality. Four machines are on the ground, and Messrs. Horsley showed their one and two horse power ones, Messrs. Samuelson a two-horse, and Messrs. Burgess and Key a one of a similar type. lines of railway, are most in demand, and we improve the quality of the stock. For cattle, heavy yearlings are the best, and for sheep, the best is the heavy, well-maintained, but on Thursday a fall of 76 to 78 was shown for the best. For sheep, prices showed a decline of about 10 on last rates. much of the week. William and his wife also been heavily supplied. The bulk were forward on Thursday, when the market was very quiet. The few cattle offered were mostly in one day, and price, on the whole, were not advanced, which may be attributed to the fact that the market was not so well supplied as it was in the week before last. INDIA'S MAHOMEDAN CAPITAL

What idea this descendant of the great Mogul had of Paradise is all around to be seen in whitest marble and finest alabaster. I enter through the hall of the public audience, and pass to the private one; thence I am led to the music hall, in which a hall was given to English Royalty when lately represented here; after the several pavilions, and a sort of throne room and judgment hall are visited. The walls of most of these halls are lined with rich Moslem work, representing flowers, fruit, and birds of India—all of such work being in rare stones. The ceiling is figured in silver lacquer work, and supported by columns of the same. There are between some of them richly wrought alabaster screens reaching half-way up from the floor. It is all a bare, empty, and unfurnished scene now, and a desolate one to boot. The most valuable of the rare stones have been picked from out the wall decorations, and the silver work has been pulled out from the ceiling.

Enough is left to show that it must all hereabouts have once approached that barbaric splendour which is snares. The animal is as useful, but not as quick as a cat. I got alarmed at the noise :—at the first and second nights, until I completed the matter, and learn the customs of the country. I notice one custom that I think might be mended. I hear a heavy fall just outside the bathroom one morning, and looking out see two Hindus engaged on the ground in an earnest and silent fight; no effort is made to rise, the chair of one is clasped in the arms of the other, and he is hawking over his shoulder at the other's head. I brand. I find that no passer by interferes in the least, and so adjudge it to be all right, though I looked to English eyes as an unfair way of fighting.

Journeying out from the city for several miles, pass the ruins of the previous cities. The first seen are the vestiges of the earliest known Delhi, the remains of which are said to be thirty miles in circumference. The Delhi of a later date has something more distinguishable to show, and again that of a still more recent period shows fine towers and buildings still standing. These claim the traveller's attention as much as do the

A HEROINE.—The San Diego Union says: "San Diego poses as a land of heroes and heroines. The story of the capture of the outlawed John Lawrence, last Tuesday, is a case in point. A party of five men, who were wild cattle were being driven through the streets, and one of them snatched out a child at play and started it. The vagabond, who was drunk, tumbled from his horse and was about to turn the furious animal. At this point Miss Lawrence came along, and taking in the situation, sprang into the vacant saddle, ran down the steer, threw her shawl over his head just as it was about to charge, and then, with a single bound, she sprang up to the child, and without leaving her seat, to the rescue of the child, and without leaving her seat, she reached to it and lifted it into her lap, and then carried it safely."

ELECTORS OF BRISBANE WARD

FELLOW ELECTORS.—I wish to have a few words to say about who is to be our man for our ward.

I had been asked, and had made up my mind to work and do as I could for

but, as I have only been a few months of years, I did not know what Mr. Fritchard was like when he was an Alderman. I went to his house to inquire and found that he said in the Town Hall, when he was an Alderman, that and I heard about the fearful wreck of the ill-fated "MURRAY," when so many wives were left widows, with large families, and

HE WOULD PUT A POLI TAX

OF TEN POUNDS

UPON EVERY IRISHMAN

WHAT OCCURRED ABOUT THE MANGLE,

and so I heard, therefore,

ALL ABOUT THE IRISH AND THE POOR

as now I cannot vote for him, I thought he got his in his own country, and right time and proud and I to ban Irishman.

Yours obediently,

MICHAEL JOHN CONNOLLY.

The WELL-KNOWN BREWERY and plant, situate near Eskbank Railway Station, in the rising township of Lithgow.

This brewery is erected on 1½ acres leasehold, having 25 years to run. A creek of never-failing supply of the purest water runs

The railway Works, iron mines, coal works, and other enormous public undertakings, ensure a constant demand for many years; in fact it is a certain fortune for an enterprising practical brewer. The brewery turns out 42 hogsheads per week, and could easily double the output.

Inspection is solicited.

DUNGARUBA and
situated on the north side of the Richmond River, embracing an area of about 35,000 acres, being all available country on the side of the river, to which is attached about 60 miles.

It is abundantly watered by the Dugaruba and Tucki Tucki Creeks, and the Burrawurr, which ensures a never failing supply.

With the runs will be sold

4500 HEAD MIXED CATTLE
all more or less.

The CATTLE are an exceedingly well-bred herd, great care having been taken for many years in the selection of the bulls; and the sheep are of the best quality, and probably among the best in the colony. There have been taken out for the last four years, there is a large number of marketable cattle now available.

There are 230 acres of purchased land on the runs, which will have been sold at 10/- per acre.

The IMMENSE extent of superintendence, the residence of 4 rooms, kitchen, servants' room, three-wall stable, milking yard, shed, overruns' cottage, slaughter-house, stock-yard capable of working 6000 head, and other improvements, and the richness of the land, which can be purchased in virtue of improvements.

This valuable property is situated at the heads of navigation, and commands the view of the mouth of the river.

The character of the CLARENCE and RICHMOND CATTLE is too well-known to need special comment here; the extraordinary advantages of these stations are of such a nature as to render them the most lucrative, easily managed, and safest investments that could be made, and free from all the disadvantages and disastrous effects of drought, while the condition of the herd would afford ample security for a very large return.
